<sup>1</sup> See the letter concerning the MacGregors being employed in Ireland from Agnes' husband, James MacDonald of Dunivaig, 6 June 1564 [20]. The MacGregors were reported to have landed in the south-west of Scotland, 8 October 1564 [23].

<sup>4</sup> Having had a licence to depart from the Glens of Antrim refused by James MacDonald, the MacGregors had been forced to go south to the English base at Carrickfergus commanded by Captain William Piers. The Scottish Council had issued a commission at Grey Colin's request to try to prevent boats from the West coast being used to transport the MacGregors, 4; 13-21 August 1564, GD112/1/150-1; printed in W. Fraser, The Lennox, 2 vols, (Edinburgh, 1874), II, 427-8; MacGregor, thesis, 335-6.

&lt;sup>5</sup> Replacing the crossed out, 'writing that I sent to zow'. There is no other indication of the matters discussed between Lady Agnes, Katherine and Grey Colin, though they might have involved marriage proposals.
