

A Round Table Discussion

“The Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Defining a New Research Agenda”

Friday 28 September 2007, 3.00-5.00pm

Members on the panel include:

Heidi Safia Mirza, Professor of Equality Studies in Education, Centre for Equality & Human Rights, London Institute of Education

Paul Chaney, Cardiff School of Social Sciences, University of Cardiff

Nick Watson, Director, Strathclyde Centre for Disability Research, University of Glasgow

Rowena Arshad, Moray House School of Education, University of Edinburgh & EOC Commissioner

Sheila Riddell, Professor of Inclusion and Diversity, University of Edinburgh

The Commission for Equality and Human Rights comes into being on 1 October 2007. This round table discussion will focus on the new equality and human rights research agenda. Questions to be addressed include the following:

- How will the CEHR's agenda play out in the context of devolution?
- What are the implications of the unified approach to equality for particular strands?
- How will the equality and human rights agendas articulate?
- What are the key areas of inequality which should be addressed?
