Scottish Graduate School for Arts and Humanities

19th -21st June 2018

The SGSAH Summer School is a three day event which offers discipline-focused workshops and seminars, hands on technical approaches to research data and practical career-focused events. This year sees more workshops from experts catering to a wider group of doctoral researchers in the arts and humanities as well as panel discussions on a variety of topics.

More information here - <http://www.sgsah.ac.uk/summer/>

Design for Well-Being – the Southside Challenge

Join an absorbing design workshop taking place over two days! This event will bring University students and staff together in multi-disciplinary teams to solve a locally-based challenge: how to tackle anti-social behaviour in public spaces while also promoting social inclusion. Challenges will be posed by local stakeholders who have an interest in Nicolson Square. This event is running as part of the year-round programme of the University of Edinburgh's Festival of Creative Learning.

PhD Horizons Careers Conference

The PhD Horizons Careers Conference is now open for bookings. PhD students from all subject areas, and at any stage of their PhD, who want to explore their career options are welcome to attend.

Wednesday 6 June, 9:00am – 4:30pm

Appleton Tower, Central Area

Book your place now to hear about some of the different career areas entered by PhD graduates. There will be up to 30 speakers in occupations including public policy, museums, data science, social research and consultancy, medical writing, creative sector, finance, and many more. A detailed programme will be published nearer the time.

Introduction to Academic Practice (IntroAP) 2018/19

The next intake for IntroAP (leading to Associate Fellow of Advance HE, formerly HEA) 2018/19 will be this September. Applications will open in early August.

For more information about the Higher Education Academy accredited course, please follow this link: <https://edin.ac/2hwx51v>

Policy for the recruitment, support and development of tutors and demonstrators

Replacing the old Code of Practice (2005), this new Policy comes into effect in September 2018 and covers a range of aspects of recruitment, support and development of tutors and demonstrators, including: arrangements for contracts and payment; roles and responsibilities; mandatory induction and training; non-mandatory training and development; and resolving problems. It is aimed at both tutors/demonstrators and the staff who support them.

More information may be found here: <https://edin.ac/2KOVlam>

Free wellbeing resources for students

There are a number of free wellbeing resources for students at the University of Edinburgh:

Beltane Twilight | Public Engagement and Teaching: Two Sides of the Same Coin (26th June)

Beltane Breakfasts and Twilights are informal meetings where people from Edinburgh's universities, and people who want to work with them, can come to find out more and share information about specific public engagement topics. At this Beltane Twilight, we'll be hearing and discussing the thoughts of Thomas Bak on the similarities between public engagement and teaching. <https://edin.ac/2GNMskI>

Cabaret of Dangerous Ideas 2018 (3rd-27th August inclusive)

The tickets for the 2018 Cabaret of Dangerous Ideas (CoDI) are on sale!

Now in its sixth year, CoDI has been running at the Edinburgh Fringe since 2013. CoDI is a unique blend of serious academic research, irreverent comedy and a liberal dose of controversy – all in the cause of our universities' brightest and bravest engaging with the public through the medium of entertainment at the world's largest arts festival. <https://edin.ac/2GNMskI>

Save the date! | Explorathon 2018 (28th and 29th September)

Some of Scotland's universities, including all of those in Edinburgh, will be taking part in European Researchers' Night – Explorathon in Scotland – for the fifth year running. Do you fancy sharing your research at an event designed to reach over 3,000 people? Apply to our call for entries – coming soon! <https://edin.ac/2LdPotw>

Save the date! | Royal Society training (24th October)

The Royal Society will be in Edinburgh on Wednesday 24th October to deliver their training "An Introduction to Public Engagement". This will be a workshop with a limited number of spaces available to each of the Edinburgh universities. More information coming as we get it! <https://edin.ac/2L9tVBV>
